Sask. tackles stripping acts

Adult entertainment. Cities preparing for province's amended liquor law allowing much more liberal removals of clothing

ROSS ROMANIUK
ross.romaniuk@metronews.ca

It's a new era of loosening restrictions on adult entertainment, but it's still a long way from letting things really hang out.

In Saskatchewan's two major cities and municipalities across the province, officials are wrestling — or soon will be — with ways to handle exotic adult entertainment when such "striptease" performances become legal at liquor-licensed businesses this winter.

"It's been one of the more controversial changes that we've made," Donna Harpauer, minister responsible for the Saskatchewan Liquor and Gaming Authority, said of the province's decision to allow strip acts — or something close to them — as of January.

"It's been literally decades since there have been wide, sweeping changes to liquor laws in Saskatchewan. And I think we're ready for it."

To get ready for the province's new allowance of dancers removing clothing — still without full nudity — in front of alcohol-consuming bar patrons, the two biggest cities are bracing for an impact.

In Saskatoon, city community services manager Randy Grauer notes that officials have sought to "perhaps engage the community a little bit" about the extent to which zoning should keep strip bars to certain locations.

"We thought there might be a cost implication on our police service, on overall enforcement around more flexible liquor consumption," Grauer said. "And should there be a separation distance between them?"

In Regina, city hall will likely keep its measuring stick in hand for exotic entertainment locations. Acting planning manager Ben Mario said current zoning standards are almost certain to remain in place.

"They're basically restricted to industrial zones, but they have a number of separation distance criteria," Mario explained. "They can't be 182.88 metres from a residential land use zone."

Harpauer points out that if a municipality feels strongly enough, it "could completely restrict it" by using zoning to make the entire city off-limits to exotic bar entertainment.

That might, however, be extreme.

"We'll still be the most restrictive province," Harpauer noted of the new dress allowance for entertainers.

"The genitals would have to be covered. And the nipples would have to be covered. But you could remove everything up to that point."

Sakimay reserve to be searched for clues in disappearance

About 25 RCMP officers and volunteers will comb through a wooded area at Sakimay First Nation on Friday, as they search for more evidence in the disappearance of Robin Cocks — whose remains were discovered in the area last year.

The search will focus on a remote area of the reserve, about 125 kilometres east of Regina. That's where two residents discovered a skull in April 2012 before police determined that it belonged to Cocks.

RCMP spokesman Cpl. Rob King said the searchers are looking "for pieces of clothing, human remains" and anything "out of the ordinary" in the secluded area.

King added that this year's cold and wet spring delayed the search until now.

After initial forensic testing on the skull resulted in no matches, a former resident of the reserve living in Vancouver led investigators to Cocks, a native of Dalles First Nation near Kenora, Ont.

Revenue drops

Oil helps keep Saskatchewan budget in black

Falling revenue from potash, taxes and Crown land sales is hitting Saskatchewan's bottom line, but more oil money is keeping the books in the black so far.

The Saskatchewan government says in its first-quarter budget update that stronger oil prices are expected to increase revenue by $92 million.

But revenue from Crown land sales is forecast to drop $45.6 million, potash revenue is expected to be down $21.3 million and tax revenue looks to fall by $15 million from March budget projections.

Wakeboarders ride the waves at Wascana Lake

Wake Jam 2013. Championship set for Saturday as spectators can see flips and tricks by top athletes

ALYSSA MCDONALD
alyssa.mcdonald@metronews.ca

This is indeed making waves. And people along Wascana Lake on Thursday took notice.

Several rookie wakeboarders rode the water for the first time, with free lessons — providing a glimpse of what will be seen at Wascana Park on Saturday.

"(We are) giving everybody the opportunity to try wakeboarding and check out some really great wakeboarders in the coming days," said Adam Burwell, owner of Grassroots Wakeboard School, who taught the Learn to Ride sessions.

Burwell is the event coordinater for Wake Jam 2013, the provincial Wakeboard championship that will cover the park on Saturday. Those in attendance, he said, will see flips and tricks by "some of the best in the province and in Canada."

Burwell offered 15 free 20-minute lessons on Thursday as a way to get beginners onto the board to try the sport.

It was the first time on a wakeboard for 13-year-old Paige DeBruin, who after only one try was able to get to her feet.

"It was awesome," said DeBruin. "You felt like you were flying."

Wakeboarding on Wascana is not a sight you see everyday — Burwell applied to hold the lessons and the event at the park.

"It's not a common thing to see a motorboat on Wascana Lake," said Burwell.

"What I love about being on Wascana Lake is just the urban setting. It's awesome to be able to wakeboard in my hometown, in front of the legislature and it's just such a beautiful place to be."

Background check of Brazeau missed address conflict

A background check of Patrick Brazeau by officials in the Prime Minister's Office ignored or overlooked the conflicting addresses now at the heart of an RCMP probe into the senator's finances.

Brazeau was claiming aboriginal tax status, and his driver's licence and passport showed his address as his former father-in-law's house on the Kiniw Zibi Mika First Nation reserve in Maniwaki, Que.

Police, however, allege he was actually living in Gatineau, about 90 minutes away, directly across the river from the national capital.

Two teens face child porn charges in Parsons case

Cyberbullying. Father of 17-year-old who took her own life calls arrests 'bittersweet'

HALEY RYAN
Metro in Halifax

Two young men are facing child pornography charges in the case of Rehtaeh Parsons, nearly two years after her parents allege the teen was gang-raped and a photo of the incident was shared via social media.

On Thursday evening, Halifax police held a news conference to announce the charges.

"A young girl … experienced the harsh nature of a world of people wanting to do harm and using social media to do it," said Halifax Regional Police Chief Jean-Michel Blais.

"We hope that today's arrests help the community to heal," added Halifax RCMP Chief Supt. Roland Wells.

The young men, both 18, were arrested around 8 a.m. Thursday. One faces two counts of distributing child pornography, and the other charges of making and distributing child pornography.

Blais said no sexual assault charges will be laid because the Crown advised there was "insufficient evidence" to bring any to court.

Glen Canning, Rehtaeh's father, said it was a "bittersweet" moment when he learned of the arrests.

"On one hand I would want to be very happy and very grateful … on the other hand, it's a bit of a bittersweet moment because Rehtaeh's dead now, and it doesn't really make much of a difference to her," he said.

Rehtaeh, 17, took her own life in April after nearly two years of bullying following an alleged rape at a party when she was 15.

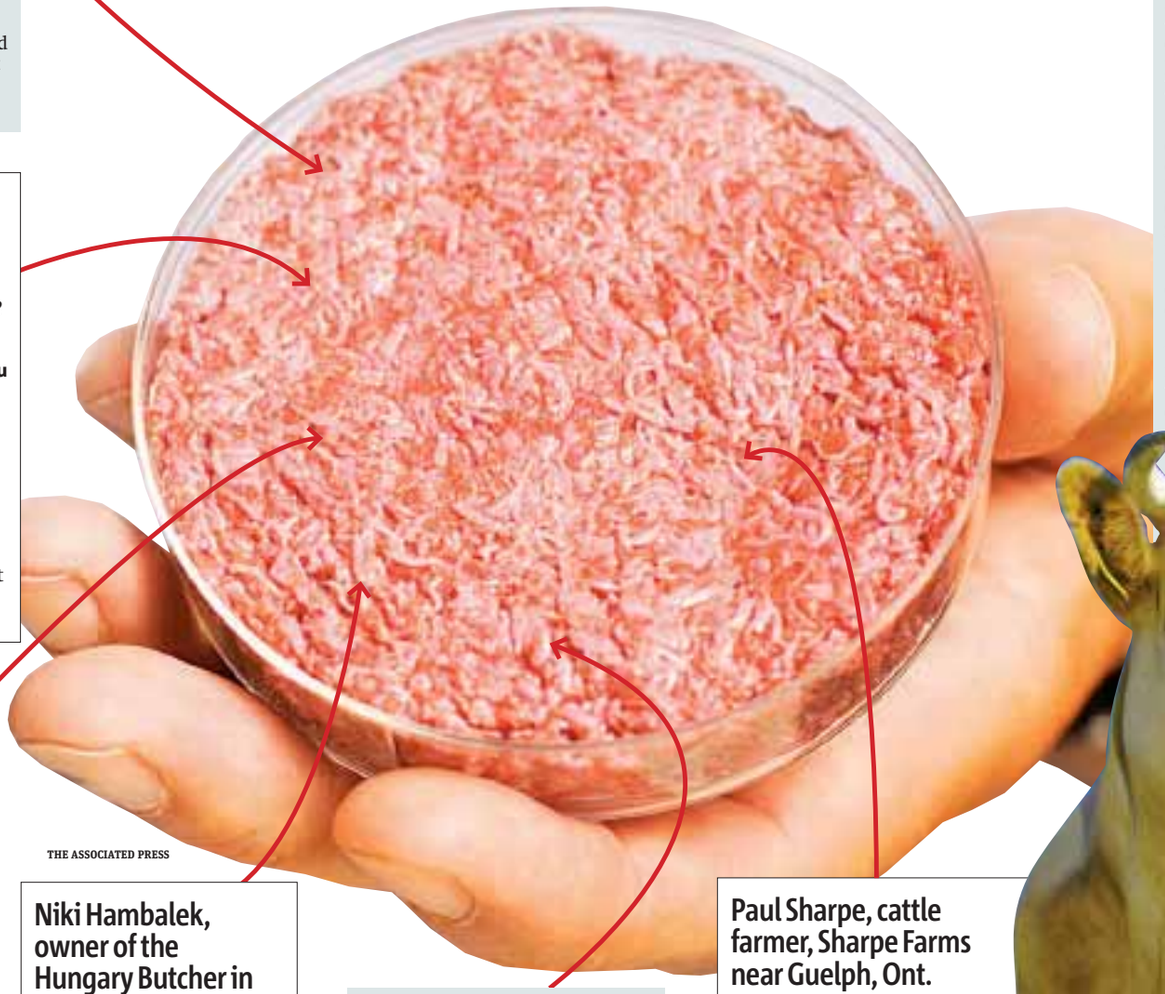
Shortly after, a photo of the alleged incident was sent around her school.

The two teens charged Thursday have been released from custody and will appear in Halifax Youth Court on Aug. 15.

Is this bull?

For some, meat grown from stem cells instead of harvested from animals is an answer to the age-old problem of killing one creature for another's enjoyment. To others, the whole idea just seems ridiculous

METRO IN LONDON, ONT.



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingrid Newkirk, president of PETA

Is it meat? "It is real meat — it's flesh. It's muscle cells, when you're eating it you're eating animal flesh."

Would you eat it? "I don't need to try it; it doesn't interest me personally. If someone made a bet, (something like) Canada would go vegetarian today to eat it, I'd do it. If it helped to reduce suffering, I'd do it on a bet."

Michael Kuijpers, Vegan Activists of London, Ont.

Is it meat? "Yes."

Would you eat it? "I don't think so because it was grown from stem cells.... I support it (though) — any alternative that would help decrease the demand for animal products is a great thing."

Dr. Greg Kelly, biology professor, Western University

Is it meat? "I'd say it's meat.... You're bathing the cells in growth factors, nutrients, things the cells need to grow."

Would you eat it? "Sure, why not? I mean I'm not a big fan of veggie burgers, but it's an alternative. It's what you put on it that makes it tasty."

Niki Hambalek, owner of the Hungary Butcher in London, Ont.

Is it meat? "No. I would call it artificial meat. How could you call it beef? That's lying, right?"

Would you eat it? "Not at all. I wouldn't even consider it. I don't see any difference in cloning or doing this. How is it going to affect my health in 10 years?"

Vinod Sharma, president of United Hindu Congress of Canada

Is it meat? "It is not natural-grown food."

Would you eat it? "Absolutely not.... First of all, Hindu (people) don't eat beef. Secondly, we are totally against any kind of production of artificial meat for human consumption."

Paul Sharpe, cattle farmer, Sharpe Farms near Guelph, Ont.

Is it meat? "No. Is it very interesting? Yes. It's a topic of conversation, yes, but is it the same thing to me? No."

Would you eat it? "Sure, I would eat it, and I'm sure it's not going to kill me. I'm not afraid of that. Would I eat it on an ongoing basis? No."

Meat never past its stem-cell-by date

The world is our oyster, er, better yet, meat market

A T. rex steak? A woolly mammoth taco? How about your grouchy old boss served up (quite literally) on a silver platter?

In theory, we could someday be eating it all without hurting anyone or anything — taken straight from stem cells lovingly nurtured in a petri dish and dished up on your dinner table.

Maastricht University in the Netherlands is at the root of what could become a modern food marvel. A team there has unveiled a hamburger (valued at $340,000) that was grown in a lab instead of cut from a cow.

And, experts say, that's only the start of where this could all wind up.

Simply put, if this whole thing shakes out, stem cells from pretty much anything we can get our hands on could be cultivated, grilled and enjoyed — depending on how strong your stomach is, of course.

CRTC turns down Sun News' basic cable bid

Television. However, telecom regulator says it plans to review rules for news channels

Sun News Network says it will stay on the air while the CRTC reviews the way news channels are regulated in Canada.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission on Thursday rejected the network's bid to be carried on basic cable, casting fresh doubts on the future of the controversial upstart broadcaster.

But the CRTC also says it will review the regulations for news channels in Canada.

"The diversity of voices is an essential component of our society, particularly as they relate to news and information in the Canadian broadcasting system," CRTC chairman Jean-Pierre Blais said in a statement.

"Television news channels provide an important public service by ensuring that Canadians are exposed to different opinions and perspectives on matters that concern all citizens. We are concerned that, under the existing rules, Canadian news services are not being given a pride of place in our broadcasting system."

That provides a glimmer of hope for Sun News, which told the CRTC this spring that anything short of mandatory carriage would spell the end of the channel, dubbed Fox News North by some critics when it made its debut in April 2011.

Mandatory carriage would have generated significant revenue for the network, which lost $17 million last year — a situation parent company Quebecor calls "clearly unsustainable."

Road safety. Herzog teams up with AT&T for short film on texting and driving

In his documentaries, Werner Herzog has examined grizzly bears, plane crash survivors, cave paintings and death row inmates. For his latest project, the filmmaker is exploring the dangers of texting while driving in From One Second to the Next, a 35-minute short film that emotionally recounts how lives have been forever changed by the issue.

"I knew I could do it because it has to do with catastrophic events invading a family," said Herzog, 70. "In one second, entire lives are either wiped out or changed forever. That kind of emotional resonance is something that I knew I could cover."

The documentary, which tells the stories of both victims and perpetrators, is available to watch at ItCanWait.com and will be distributed by AT&T to more than 40,000 high schools, as well as hundreds of safety organizations and government agencies.

Footwear. For Adidas, slump in Europe is offset by sales boost in China, Latin America

German shoe and sporting goods company Adidas AG said Thursday that net profit rose four per cent in the second quarter to about $238 million as stronger sales in China and Latin America offset a decline in Europe.

Sales fell 11 per cent in the April-June quarter in Western Europe, where the year-earlier figure was swollen by advance sales of gear linked to the London Olympics and the UEFA Euro 2012 soccer tournament.

Europe's weak economy, with an ongoing recession and high unemployment, also played a role in holding down sales.

Sales rose 21 per cent in Latin America and six per cent in China, excluding the effects of shifting currency exchange rates. North American sales fell two per cent as a late start to the golf season hurt sales at the TaylorMade brand, which makes clubs and balls.

1 When the dealin's done. Amazon founder Jeff Bezos bought the Washington Post from the Grahams to whom it belonged for 80 years. The sale came as a surprise to many, so when Post Co. CEO Donald E. Graham was asked why he would sell his family business so suddenly, he said, "Look, I'm old. It's a newspaper, and the guy had $250 million." Touché, Donny.

2 Global warming. A new study revealed worrisome statistics from 2012. Rising sea levels and melting ice reached alarming levels. Temperatures were only slightly affected but have been increasing at a rate of about 1.5 C per decade over the last 50 years. In short, I may not have to worry in my lifetime, but we should all probably stop having kids.

3 Shark week. Headlines read "Dead shark found on NYC subway." Firstly, do we need the word 'dead' here? Or is it not enough that in a densely populated city, someone could enter a station with a three-foot-long stinking sea creature, wait for the train, drag it in before the doors close, and place it under a row of seats without anyone noticing?

4 'Sppeling' be. Twelve-year-old Thomas Hurley III misspelled the final Jeopardy! answer 'Emanciptation Proclamation,' which judges deemed unacceptable. The commotion caused by this completely overshadowed the fact that the real winner not only had the answer spelled correctly, but that his record-breaking score of $66,000 meant that Thomas had zero chance of winning anyway. But maybe I'm just 'nipticking.'

5 Grand slam. It was a big week for 38-year-old Alex Rodriguez who returned to baseball this week after his second hip surgery in four years. A-Rod also received a suspension for drug use, which he is appealing on the basis that, at his age and stage of his career, pretty much anything would qualify as "performance-enhancing."

6 Birthday suit. When asked if she was uncomfortable with the nudity and risqué sexuality in playing the role of Linda Lovelace, Amanda Seyfried shrugged and said, "It's a costume really. Just a naked body. We all look the same." Umm, no, but that's why I love Amanda Seyfried.

7 The Bachelorette. If I understand this correctly, Desiree told the final bachelor, "I publicly declared my love for another contestant who told me he didn't feel the same (just last week), and it made me realize I was in love with you all along." Ah, the romantic story we all long to tell our kids, and it's all on video. Cheers!

8 This week in music. In 1975 The Bee Gees hit No. 1 in America with Jive Talkin', which was the group's second U.S. chart-topper on the road to many more. They were also the first known white people to ever use that phrase.

9 Piano in the dark. The Canadian music community suffered a loss this week when James Gray died of a sudden heart attack. James was just 52, and played keyboards for the Rheostatics, Vital Sines, and Blue Rodeo. Among the countless artists who had the pleasure to work with Gray, he will be fondly remembered. His death leaves a gaping hole in the music community. As for me, I thank him for the songs he leaves behind.

Underground station for sale

Brompton Road underground station, now disused, in central London, is up for sale for about $31 million.

The station is near to the historic Brompton Oratory church and the ritzy Harrods department store. It opened in 1906 but turned out to be too close to other stations to attract many passengers, and was closed in 1934.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once also used by military in WWII

Brompton Road station is being sold by the Ministry of Defence, which bought the building in the 1936, when it became an army anti-aircraft headquarters, protecting London from German bombers during the Blitz.

The ministry, which is selling several properties and laying off thousands of soldiers in a cost-cutting drive, says the building has been declared "surplus to requirements" and will be put up for sale next month. The site includes a station building covered in the distinctive oxblood-coloured tiles of London Underground's Piccadilly Line. The ministry said the interior includes "a drill hall, garages, offices and mess," as well as elevator shafts and underground passages — though not the subway tunnels, which remain in use and belong to London's transit operator.

Synopsis

Set in 2154, humanity has split into two sections, the one per cent, who live on an Eden called Elysium that hovers high above Earth, and the 99 per cent who toil on what's left of our planet. The one per cent have it all plus medical care that can cure any ailment. On earth Max (Matt Damon) is an ex-thief who has always dreamed of living in Elysium and is now working a straight job to save enough to buy a ticket. When he's exposed to a lethal dose of radiation he makes a deal with a crime boss (Wagner Moura) who hires him to do a job for a one-way ticket to Elysium. Metro's Liz Brown sits in for Mark Breslin.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Back to the future?

Elysium. District 9 director's return to the big screen isn't as sci-fi fresh as his debut

Richard: Liz, director Neill Blomkamp's big screen debut, District 9, was a fresh slice of sci-fi with a real beating heart. He brings that same kind of humanity to Elysium, but it doesn't feel quite as fresh this time around. It's exciting, has some great action and ideas and everybody's boyfriend Matt Damon, but for all that, it feels much more standard than I hoped it would be. What did you think?

Liz: Richard, Elysium isn't as fresh because it's District 9 with prettier faces. There's an unfair class system, a guy who undergoes a grotesque transformation and the same dusty shanty towns. I even thought Blomkamp recycled footage from District 9 — the Los Angeles of 2154 looks oddly like the Prawn camp outside Johannesburg. But a shredded Matt Damon is a nice addition to the somewhat tired story.

RC: I should make it clear that I liked most of this movie. I think the setup is interesting, even if it is reminiscent of everything from Oblivion and even WALL-E, and for the first hour it does what great sci-fi should do, comment on the human condition. But then it becomes an ordinary bash-'em and beat-'em action movie with sentimental and mawkish overtones. It's not bad, and, in fact, at times is pretty great, just not as great as I expected.

LB: While the story was meh, for me, the bash-'em-up scenes were great. Watching Matt Damon and a deranged Sharlto Copley tangle in some mortal combat was a lot of fun. I thought Copley — who was the wimpy Wikus in District 9 — really stole the show in his role as a rogue secret service agent.

RC: Copley is entertaining, chewing through the scenery like he hasn't eaten in a week. Damon also impresses. He's believable as both the sensitive guy with a dream and the lethal, half-cyborg warrior capable of opening a can of futuristic whoop ass on everyone in his way. Jodie Foster is nicely cast as the ice cold Donald-Rumsfeld-style villain, but I found her perfect diction really distracting. Every word she says seemed to have its own finely honed shape to the point where I almost had a hard time understanding what she was saying.

LB: Foster wasn't the only one with distracting diction. I found the fast-talk in this film impossible to understand. I'm still not sure of the finer points of the Earthling plan to invade Elysium and maybe Matt Damon missed them too, judging from the way things go terribly wrong. He really got a raw deal didn't he? Only Damon could take on a lethal radiation dose, sketchy Tijuana-style surgery and a few beatings and still save the day.

Stars. Dane Cook, Stacy Keach, Brad Garrett

After narrowly qualifying for the Wings Around the World Rally, Dusty (voice of Dane Cook), a single-propeller crop duster with a fear of heights, recruits the help of retired Navy Corsair Skippy (voice of Stacy Keach) to teach him how to win. Unfortunately the race's reigning champ Ripslinger (Roger Craig Smith) feels threatened by Dusty and conspires to dash his high hopes. Planes plays like an airborne Cars, but has a definite direct-to-DVD feel about it. There are good messages about the benefits of honesty and hard work, but the dull story never takes flight. RICHARD CROUSE

Drama

The Lesser Blessed

Director. Anita Doron

Stars. Joel Evans, Benjamin Bratt, Kiowa Gordon

In Anita Doron's The Lesser Blessed, the life of a First Nations teenager living in the Northwest Territories is drastically changed when he's befriended by the new boy at school. Larry Sole (Joel Evans) stops being an outsider the day Johnny Beck (Kiowa Gordon) takes him under his wing, but even he can't seem to protect Larry from his past. Though it serves a heavy dose of adolescent drama, Doron's feature lends a voice to First Nations characters we don't normally see on screen.

Lindsay Lohan. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Did Lindsay Lohan find a star-crossed lover in rehab?

Rehab was apparently a lot more fun for Lindsay Lohan than we previously thought — at least until a fellow Cliffside Malibu patient was reportedly kicked out for inappropriate sexual relations with the actress, according to Radar Online.

Lohan and the mystery man began "dating" shortly after she checked in, another patient claims.

"Prior to Lindsay's arrival I was roommates with the guy who ended up dating her. When she came, the first or second day they ended up kissing and it was on from there," the source says.

"Everybody in rehab knew they were dating. It was pretty obvious. But the guy eventually got kicked out because of Lindsay. The guy who owns Cliffside slacked on the rules for Lindsay, but they got cocky with their relationship and people got uncomfortable with the situation, saying they couldn't do that stuff when people are trying to get well. I know that's why he was asked to leave. They interviewed everyone about it, and all the girls ratted them out because they hated Lindsay."

Jennifer Aniston.

It's her wedding and she'll have it when she wants to

Jennifer Aniston is fed up with the tabloids reporting that she and fiancé Justin Theroux have called off their wedding.

"Well, there was no wedding planned," an exasperated Aniston says while visiting The Talk, a daytime chat show.

"Do you realize that the majority of all of those tag rags are loaded with absolute false information? They like to create the stories because it's not interesting, the story of, 'we're really happy and in love and feel like we're married and eventually we're going to get married when we find the time.' I don't think there's a rush."

METRO DISH

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Beyoncé, and more celebs who chopped their hair off

The unthinkable has happened. Beyoncé, who pretty much runs the world right now, with her inexplicably voluminous waves flowing in her hip-shaking wake, has gone for the chop. She posted photos to her Instagram today of the bleached-blond do, immediately dividing her five million plus followers. In recognition of this monumental moment, we reflect on other celebrities who have divided the world with their haircut.

Anne Hathaway
The Les Mis star has never had the best luck with public opinion in the first place, but when she cut off her hair for the role of Fantine, things got messy. Alongside the usual haters you actually had Hathaway joining in herself, saying she looked like her "gay brother" and claiming to be "inconsolable."

Emma Watson
Hermione without her signature bushy long hair is almost as shocking as Beyoncé without her iconic locks.

Rihanna
When Rihanna first went for the crop it signalled the end of the Pon de Replay era and the beginning of the provocative singer as we now know her.

Miley Cyrus
What better way to wave her Disney days goodbye than with a bleached pixie cut? The new, punked-up Miley was probably a bit of a surprise to her pre-teen fan base. She's still working on making her image click. METRO

Amanda Bynes.

Drake speaks out on Amanda Bynes' obsession

With Amanda Bynes safely under psychiatric care and off Twitter — for the moment, at least — Drake is finally speaking out about the troubled actress' seeming obsession with him that resulted in a steady barrage of tweets calling him "stunning" one day and "ugly" the next.

"I don't even know who that is doing that or what that's about," Drake tells XXL magazine.

"If that is her, I guess it's a little weird and disturbing. It's obviously a behavioural pattern that is way bigger than me."

With craft beer hotter than you know where, larger producers are caught in a bit of a conundrum. How, after decades of massaging the taste profile of their brands so they appeal to the masses, do they compete with up-starts that are all about in-your-face flavours?

Many have returned to their kettles to take advantage of beer's primary flavouring agent — the often unheralded hop.

Hops are the lady part of the humulus lupulus plant. And while the water or grain source of your fave brew influences its personality, individual hop strains provide the bitter goodness and expressive character.

Alexander Keith's, the one-time Nova Scotia exclusive that's now carried across the country, is proving my point by creating a unique series of ales named for the specific hop used.

Its Cascade Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is a mellow session beer with citrusy overtones and a nice, bitter bite. The Hallertauer Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is lighter with more of a backseat bitterness that lets the malt shine through.

Try both with classic barbecue fare or spicy, hard to match dishes like Indian curries. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

A flurry of sweet treats

Ice cream. Need a fresh way to chill out this summer? How about DIY flurries?

A flurry is simple — and it isn't something you can only get at the ice cream shop. You start off with ice cream, usually a basic flavour, then you stir or mix or blend all kinds of things into it. It's not a float; no liquid is added. It's like an ice cream sundae, but with the toppings blended instead of piled on top.

Start with a pint of ice cream. Remove the lid and microwave it for about 10 seconds. Test it with a spoon. The ice cream should still be frozen, but should give when pressed with the back of the spoon. If it's not ready, continue microwaving in 5-second bursts, testing in between.

Now you're ready to mix. You can keep it simple and just use a spoon to mix the ice cream and toppings in a bowl, but where's the fun in that? Ice cream shops often use a stick blender, an item you may not have. So instead, toss everything into the food processor and pulse a few times.

As for what to use to flavour your flurries? Anything goes.

Rogers Cup men

Pospisil and Raonic advance to quarter-finals

Vasek Pospisil and Milos Raonic will play in the quarter-finals of the men's Rogers Cup.

The Vernon, B.C., native came out on top of a tight match with fifth-seeded Tomas Berdych to win 7-5, 2-6, 7-6 (5) before a roaring crowd of supporters on Thursday.

Raonic, meanwhile, didn't even break a smile after a 7-5, 6-4 win over sixth-seeded Juan Martin Del Potro, the Argentine veteran who was coming off a victory last week in Washington.

CFL's top two teams set to square off

Perfect record. The Roughriders look to continue hot streak with a win against the Stampeders

Saskatchewan Roughriders quarterback Darian Durant hands the ball off to running back Kory Sheets in the first quarter of CFL pre-season action against the Calgary Stampeders. LIAM RICHARDS/THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

If he wasn't playing in the game, quarterback Kevin Glenn says he would definitely watch it. If he wasn't coaching in it, so would Corey Chamblin.

Friday's CFL game at McMahon Stadium between the Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders may be just another regular-season game with two-thirds of the season still to be played.

But this game has more than enough back story to hook the interest of CFL fans.

"This is a game that I wish I could play in," Saskatchewan head coach Chamblin said.

Added Calgary's Glenn: "If I was on another team and this game was coming on, I would be tuned into watching this game. I'd tell my wife and kids 'daddy's watching football tonight because the 'Riders and Stampeders are playing.'"

The Roughriders are the only undefeated team in the CFL this season at 5-0. The only loss so far for the 4-1 Stampeders was to Saskatchewan on July 5.

Saskatchewan can go 6-0 to start the season for just the second time in franchise history, or the Stampeders can pull even with the Roughriders atop the CFL standings.

The Roughriders can also win the season series by taking the second of their three meetings, which means Saskatchewan would finish ahead of Calgary if the two clubs were tied in the West Division standings at season's end.

The Roughriders and Stampeders rank first and second respectively in the league in offence. Roughriders running back Kory Sheets is the CFL's leading rusher ahead of No. 2 Jon Cornish of the Stampeders.

In addition to having a premiere running back, both sides have multiple threats at receiver.

Neither team has missed a field goal this season. They're tied for the average starting point in drives (39-yard line).

Both football clubs are coming off their bye weeks with questions at quarterback. Darian Durant is back after sitting out Saskatchewan's last game with an ankle injury.

"It's been feeling fine," said Durant, who has yet to throw an interception this season.

Calgary backup Glenn will get the start Friday with Bo Levi Mitchell dressing as the No. 2. Mitchell went the distance in a win over Winnipeg in Calgary's last game, which Glenn sat out with an elbow injury.

Drew Tate was announced as Calgary's starter earlier this week, but had a setback with the throwing-arm injury he suffered late in that game in Regina in Week 2.

Head coach John Hufnagel said Thursday that Tate will be sidelined at least another two to three weeks. The coach compared Tate's injury to tennis elbow, saying his quarterback was experiencing pain in the soft tissue connected to the bone.
